16:14 - 21 October 2008

Dr Chris Ley will be on hand to take pictures.

THE Cambs Times is delighted to announce its Baby of the Year Competition which takes place over three days next week at March Town Hall.

We've booked the elegant Skoulding suite (its on the first floor) for the competition - which will also feature retailers offering quality toys, shoes and clothes as well as face painting and entertainment.

From 10am to 4pm on Wednesday October 29th, Thursday October 30th and Friday October 31st, you can have your baby photographed FOR FREE by the Cambs Times.

We've invited former GP turned family portrait photographer Dr Chris Ley to take photos which will then be entered into one of three categories when readers can vote for the Baby of the Year.

The categories are:

0-9 months; 10-18 months and 19-36 months.

The winner of each category will receive a £15 voucher and the overall winner will also win a photographic session where they can have a superb family portrait taken by our professional team and this will be presented in an elegant frame.

Voting will commence once all the photographs are assembled and published in a special supplement in the Cambs Times which will appear on Editor John Elworthy: "This is a great opportunity for parents to have a special photograph taken by a superb professional photographer.

"All the photos will appear in our paper and in a special gallery on our website and will be great for family members wherever they are in the world to catch up with family members."

Dr Ley practiced in March as a GP from 1994 until taking early retirement last year to concentrate on becoming a professional portrait and wedding photographer.

Shoots start on Wednesday October 29th to Friday October 31st,
